50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Introduction

By Hamlin Lovell, Contributing Editor, The Hedge Fund Journal

There is much further to go, but hedge fund managers are travelling along a positive trajectory for diversity.

his edition marks the eleventh edition of our 50 Leading Women in Hedge Funds report and is published in association with EY for the tenth time.

We thank EY for their continued support for this inspiring report and thank our industry network for continuing to provide nominations for exceptionally talented high achievers in the hedge fund industry.

We first published this report in 2009 and continue to receive nominations for women who have featured before over the past fourteen years, but we restrict the number of repeats to special circumstances such as significant promotions or other milestones; one repeat this year is Lone Pine's COO Kerry Tyler who is celebrating a 25 year anniversary with the company.

Seven firms are featuring for the first time: alternative credit manager, 400 Capital Management; managed futures multi-manager, Abbey Capital; illiquid alternatives specialist, Fiera Private Markets; alternatives allocator, Hedonova; digital currency manager Nickel Digital's multi-strategy Constellation Fund; systematic cryptocurrency hedge fund Strix Leviathan; and multi-strategy equity market neutral sector specialist, Woodline Partners.

The remaining firms namely Balyasny, Bridgewater, Brevan Howard, Caxton Associates, Citco, Citadel and its affiliates, Citadel Securities, D.E. Shaw Group, Dechert, Indus Capital, Lone Pine, Maples Group, MFA, Marshall Wace, Millennium Management, Moore Capital, Mudrick Capital, Point72 and affiliate Cubist, Schonfeld Strategic Advisers, Sculptor, Schulte Roth & Zabel, Seward & Kissel, Sidley Austin, Simmons & Simmons, Surveyor Capital, Taconic Capital Advisers, Tudor Investment Corporation, Verition and Wellington Management have featured at least once before and some more frequently (if not necessarily featuring in every single report). These firms provide serial honourees because they boast a broad and deep bench of senior female professionals – who are also getting promoted. The giant multi-strategy platforms have a big presence because they employ such large teams – Millennium Management has more than 5,000 employees.

Nearly eighty percent of the women in this report work for hedge fund or other alternative managers (including some that have returned external capital and are strictly speaking family offices); twelve work for service providers; one for a trade association; and one for a specialist networking platform and conference organiser.

Most work for medium sized or larger firms, though we are open to those founding their own firms or units within firms. Sadie Raney co-founded Strix Leviathan, and Natalie Faye Smith has co-founded a number of businesses within Brevan Howard, including BH Digital.

The report illustrates a spectrum of senior investment and non-investment job functions. Ten women are in investment or trading roles covering areas such as equities, fixed income, commercial mortgage-backed securities and global macro trading. Fourteen are in sales, marketing, business development, investor relations or client servicing roles, often dealing with many of the world's largest institutional investors. Six are in human resources (where hiring portfolio managers can also be dubbed “business development” inside multi-strategy funds), which is often driving forward the diversity of teams. Twelve are lawyers, working either as in-house counsel or in private practice; some of whom have expertise in ESG. Five are in operational and/or financial roles. There is a broker relations specialist and an industry advocate. Some are wearing multiple hats: one individual combines responsibility for trading and execution with DEI (Diversity, Equity and Inclusion).

Some 80% of this year's honourees are based in North America, mainly the US, with two in Canada and one in the Cayman Islands, which reflects the US-heavy industry asset breakdown. In Europe, seven are based in the UK, one in France, and one in Ireland. In Asia, three honourees are based in Hong Kong. Many of the women based in North America have come from other countries, such as Albania, Australia, China and Ireland.

Many honourees participate in multiple women's groups inside and outside their firms, such as formal women's affinity groups or networks at BNP Paribas, D. E. Shaw, Exodus Point, Millennium Management and Tudor; while Bridgewater's Melody Rollins co-founded a wider industry group, Women of Color in Investments. Mentoring is also receiving more attention as firms seek to increase the diversity of their internships, university recruitment and lateral hires, and more broadly entrepreneurship in and around the industry. Some women mentor those from their alma mater schools or colleges, while others broaden it out to encourage first time university applicants. Citadel has a Thrive Scholars program for students of colour from low income communities interested in careers in finance. One individual in this report is mentoring incarcerated people on their business ideas.

Gender equality is attracting ever more attention. The 2023 Nobel prize for Economic Sciences was awarded to Claudia Goldin of Harvard University, for her work on women's earnings and labour market participation over the centuries, which included documenting the gender pay gap. Female participation has been climbing up the right hand side of a U-shaped curve since the services sector started to dominate over manufacturing in the early twentieth century. Some professional services firms, such as a law firm in Hong Kong, now have more female than male trainees. Elsewhere in the industry, there is much further to go, but hedge fund managers are travelling along a positive trajectory for diversity.

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

Ernst & Young LLP (EY) is once again a proud sponsor of this special edition of the 50 Leading Women in Hedge Funds report, and we celebrate the outstanding accomplishments of the 2023 honourees.

At EY, we are dedicated to doing our part to building a better working world. We are committed to creating inclusive cultures and to closing the gender gap so that each person has the opportunity to reach their full potential. We help our clients embrace a diversity of views to reshape and reinvent themselves for a better future.

As a leading service provider to the alternative funds industry, we see how today's economic climate has reinforced the critical need for managers to understand more, ask better questions and adapt to opportunities and threats. In 2023, we have witnessed the growing importance of ESG products and digital assets — and we have entered into the age of generative AI, bringing the ability to derive risk and performance insights from data sets and enhance investment processes, and to provide tailored, real-time information.

No one knows exactly how these next years will play out. Our just-published EY Future of Asset Management Study explores how firms can prepare for a range of different industry scenarios by building strategic resilience. Firms should ask themselves what role their organization might play in a range of future worlds and begin planning their possible responses. Tackling the business challenges that lie ahead requires cross-disciplinary collaboration and building teams with diverse dimensions, educational backgrounds and skill sets.

This is how the future is shaping up today, and the honourees featured on these pages represent that. They have launched new products responsive to opportunities arising in the market and defined their own terms and approach. They realized they need to not only address but advance current and future investor priorities, but they also need to take steps to develop, train and encourage the next generation. They are truly inspiring individuals. Join us as we congratulate this extraordinary group of honourees from 2023!

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Dannia Altemime

Deputy General Counsel, Balyasny Asset Management (BAM), Chicago

Dannia Altemime leads a global team of twelve attorneys and legal professionals in the US and overseas that partner with investment and business teams across BAM's organization. She reports to BAM's General Counsel, Matt Siclari. She manages a broad range of complex legal matters relating to fund structuring, derivatives and finance, and other transactional negotiations. She also helps lead and manage some of the firm's most significant relationships with external counsel. She is a member of several key committees at BAM, including the Valuation Committee, Counterparty Credit Committee, Expense Committee and the Generative AI Working Group that was set up in March 2023. She was selected as one of the first members of BAM's Empowered Leadership Program, which identifies the next generation of leaders and provides them with the tools and training to grow their skills and expand their internal networks. She also has worked closely with BAM Campus Recruiting to attract and develop aspiring attorneys through the firm's summer associate program. She began her legal career with Sidley Austin as an Associate Attorney in the Investment Funds, Advisers and Derivatives group. She has a JD from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and a BA in Political Science from Loyola University.

Nabanita Banerjee

Head of Portfolio Manager Acquisition, Constellation Multi Fund, London

Nabanita Banerjee is the Head of Portfolio Manager Acquisition at Constellation Multi Fund, a London-based multi-manager, multi-strategy fund specialising in high-alpha, niche trading strategies. She plays a crucial role in sourcing globally dispersed, external and independent portfolio managers running a variety of predominantly market-neutral, signal-driven strategies – various forms of statistical arbitrage, relative value, as well as event driven – in equities, rates, FX and commodities futures. Her responsibility includes expanding and diversifying the fund’s manager portfolio. Her prior role at Nickel Digital had a similar remit, sourcing external manager pods for their Diversified Alpha Fund. She also oversaw the HR & Talent function, contributing to Nickel’s growth across various departments. With over two decades of experience in talent acquisition across industries like investment management, retail, commodity trading and fintech software, in the UK, US, Middle East and Europe, her expertise is deeply rooted in sector-specific insights and their direct impact on a company’s success. She champions cultural alignment and effectively navigates generational nuances within the modern workforce. She likes to volunteer for different causes and has been a Responder Volunteer during the pandemic in the UK supporting vulnerable individuals, and sponsored education for underprivileged girls in India. She’s a fervent advocate for DEI in the finance industry, actively participating in 100 Women in Finance events. Holding a BA degree from the University of Calcutta, she joined PwC, followed by a company-sponsored placement for a PGD in Human Resources Management from the University of Leicester, charting her career at major companies in the UAE, France and the UK.

Allie Becher

Equity Derivative Sales, Citadel Securities, New York

Allie Becher joined Citadel Securities in 2021 to build upon the Institutional Derivatives team's successful launch in 2020. Her main focus is growing counterparty relationships between Citadel Securities and leading hedge funds and asset managers across the world by offering best execution, liquidity and front-footed content. She leads the Content & Marketing pillar within the Institutional Derivatives team, curating bespoke sales and trading commentary for institutional customers and driving new development initiatives to accommodate increasing demand. Given the firm's unique position at the nexus of retail and institutional trading, she is able to spot unique trends and help clients navigate complex market conditions. She is involved with the Thrive Scholars program at Citadel Securities where she is a mentor to high-achieving students of color from low-income communities interested in careers in finance. She is also a member of the DMAA, a University of Florida alumni association benefitting UF Health Shands Children's Hospital. Prior to joining the firm, she worked at Wells Fargo Securities also servicing institutional options clients. She received her BS in Finance from the Warrington College of Business at the University of Florida.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Katie Bruce

Head of Americas and Partner, Bridgewater Associates, Westport, Connecticut

Katie Bruce joined Bridgewater in 2007 and is currently Head of Americas and a Partner of the firm. She is responsible for the firm's North American clients, working directly with strategic US and Canadian client partnerships, helping them meet their investment objectives by advising them on the most pressing issues facing global investors. She is also a leader in the firm's Women's Influence Network, where she coaches and mentors young professionals. She started her career at Bridgewater as an Investment Associate in the Trading group, where she focused on foreign currency trading strategies. While working her way through the firm's ranks, she previously led the firm's US Advisory business. Her consistent voice and leadership have helped Bridgewater to evolve over the years to better meet the growing needs of its clients. She received her BS in Biomedical Engineering from Yale University and is also a CFA charterholder. She is a fellow with the Schmidt Futures International Strategy Forum, a board member of Globally, is Board Co-Chair and Investment Committee Chair of Inspirica, and a Yale Class Treasurer. She also previously served on the board of Opportunities for a Better Tomorrow (OBT) and as a Co-Treasurer and Co-President of Person to Person.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Julianne Bryant

Associate General Counsel, Citco (Canada) Inc., Toronto

Julianne Bryant serves the Citco Fund Services division's (Citco) hedge fund and alternative asset manager clients, which manage vehicles domiciled across multiple jurisdictions including the Cayman Islands, US, Ireland, Luxembourg and Singapore, and increasingly run "hybrid" funds, a mix of closed and open-ended structures investing in public and private securities. She oversees legal and regulatory matters in multiple jurisdictions, with a particular focus on multi-jurisdictional AML/CFT in Cayman, BVI, Bermuda, Singapore, Hong Kong, Mauritius, Australia, US, Ireland, Luxembourg and Jersey, and international sanctions compliance such as complex Russian sanctions including asset freezes precluding subscriptions or redemptions. She reports to General Counsel, Michael Regan. She also liaises with Citco's external counsel and clients' external counsel. Over her 22+ years with Citco, spanning the Amsterdam, Dublin, New York, Singapore, Philippines and Toronto offices, she has played an integral role in the development of service offerings to help Citco's clients comply with numerous international regulatory obligations such as Form PE, AIFMD obligations and reporting, AEOI reporting and Cayman AMLCO/MLRO (where Citco can act as an outsourced MLRO). In 2023, she is part of a specialized team that is closely examining the SEC Private Fund Adviser Rules and how Citco can best assist client compliance. Her career started with Australian law firm Minter Ellison. She studied at The College of Law Australia and has an LLB (Hons) and Bachelor of Commerce from Western Sydney University.

Katie Carter

Partner, Dechert, London

Katie Carter is one of three regulatory partners based in London, advising on a broad range of UK and EU regulatory compliance matters impacting on asset managers, including the rules contained in the UK FSMA and FCA Handbook (and related regulation); MiFID, AIFMD, UCITS relating to the structuring and licensing of entities and the registration and distribution of investment products; as well as ESG-related regulation, including SFDR and the Taxonomy. She helps clients plan and prepare for regulatory changes such as post-Brexit UK divergence, AIFMD II, the UK SDR and forthcoming enhanced ESG reporting requirements in Europe. She also assists clients in understanding a wide range of issues relating to the global distribution of investment products such as retailisation, AIFMD pre-marketing and varying distribution structures for accessing European investors, such as third-party platforms, management company secondments, GP-led marketing and tied agents. In relation to ESG, she advises on compliance with all aspects of SFDR and the Taxonomy regulation reporting, including advising asset managers on how to structure compliant investment processes. She co-heads Dechert's European ESG working group with Mikhaelle Schiappacasse and sits on Dechert's global ESG European regulatory working groups. She works closely with offices across Dechert's global network, including colleagues in the US, Dublin, Luxembourg, Paris and Frankfurt. Her client base is made up of hedge fund managers, institutional asset managers and private fund managers based in the US, EU, Switzerland and the UK. She has an MSc in Information & Knowledge Management from London Metropolitan University and an LLB from the University of Southampton.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Eva Chan

Partner, Head of Hong Kong Office, Simmons & Simmons, Hong Kong

Eva Chan is one of Hong Kong's leading hedge fund lawyers and in 2022 became head of the Hong Kong office of Simmons & Simmons. She is one of 7 female partners out of 14 partners in that office and is a member of the firm's Global Partnership Appraisal Committee. Simmons & Simmons's Asian fund practice has been consistently ranked Band 1 by Chambers Asia Pacific and The Legal 500. She advises asset managers globally, including in mainland China, Hong Kong, elsewhere in Asia, Europe and the US. This includes well-established and emerging hedge fund managers in mainland China, one of the oldest and largest fund managers in Hong Kong, a giant US institutional manager, the largest manager in Korea, a leading European ETF provider and some private credit launches and complex restructurings. She is an expert in structuring and launching Cayman hedge fund structures which remains the most popular domicile choice, but is also increasingly assisting clients launching Hong Kong and Singapore domiciled vehicles. She has advised on innovative Hong Kong fund offerings throughout her career: the master/feeder structure (for a Taiwan master fund), the first ESG ETF and the first German domiciled fund, as well as the first inverse and leveraged products. She is a founding committee member of the Women in ETFs Hong Kong Chapter. She mentors students and young alumni of her former secondary school, as well as women working for professional firms and companies based in the Taikoo Place area in Hong Kong. She has an LLB and PCLL from the University of Hong Kong.

Hecate Chen

Portfolio Manager, Woodline Partners LP, San Francisco

Hecate Chen is a Portfolio Manager and one of the first team members to join Woodline Partners LP after its launch in 2019. She focuses on investments in Japanese consumer, retail, food and beverage, internet, business service and software names. She follows a rigorous, bottom-up research process core to Woodline's fundamental sub-sector equity strategy. Woodline's investment team is led by 13 specialized Portfolio Managers covering North American, European and Asian markets. Woodline had $16.8 billion of regulatory assets under management as of December 31, 2022. Previously, she worked for Citadel's Global Equities business, where she covered Japanese equities. Prior to joining Citadel, she focused on Chinese equities, including the internet, consumer, industrial, financial and healthcare sectors, for Tiger Pacific in New York. She began her finance career at Azentus in Hong Kong, which spun out of Goldman Sachs. She has a BS in Finance from Tsinghua University, where her coursework included financial accounting, corporate finance, economics and financial engineering. A native Mandarin speaker, she also speaks English and Japanese.

Jennifer Cohen

Global Head of Human Capital Management, Schonfeld, New York

Jennifer Cohen joined Schonfeld in 2022 to lead its global human capital management strategy. She sits on the firm's Operating Committee and reports to Chief Strategy Officer, Danielle Pizzo, an honoree of an earlier edition of this report. As a talent focused organization, Schonfeld looks to her leadership in executing the firm's talent strategy which is critical to its success. Guided by data and analytics, she focuses on organizational development, talent and total rewards. As part of the firm's focus on leveraging cutting-edge technologies, she has harnessed AI for a variety of tasks such as teasing out themes in 360-degree feedback exercises and pushing learning content to those individuals. She has also worked to onboard systems and build processes to help Schonfeld scale and deliver an enhanced employee experience. She previously spent 22 years at Goldman Sachs and its spin out, Global Atlantic, in many roles including mortgage strategy and risk. She transitioned to human capital strategy in 2014 and built out an innovative total rewards program. She has a Bachelor's and a Master's in Mathematics from Bryn Mawr College, and serves as an Advisory Director at Lytical Ventures, a venture capital firm investing in enterprise intelligence, including cybersecurity, data analytics and AI.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Lindsay Costigan

Managing Director, Head of Western Region Prime Services Sales, BNP Paribas, San Francisco

Lindsay Costigan joined BNP Paribas in 2020 to lead Prime Services Sales for the US Western Region. She is responsible for sourcing and maintaining financing relationships with hedge funds and asset managers based in the region. She quickly became an integral part of BNP Paribas' overall Global Equities franchise and plays a vital role in the firm's DEI initiatives driven by her passion in creating the next generation of leaders in finance. She is an active participant in BNP Paribas' Women in Global Markets initiative where she helps recruit and mentor summer interns, analysts, and up-and-coming women at BNP Paribas. She has facilitated multiple flagship events including BNP Paribas' Annual Hedge Fund Executive Summit, the thematic "On the Radar" roundtable event series and various capital introduction forums. She is also an active participant in industry wide events including those hosted by Sohn San Francisco, Bloomberg, iConnections, The Milken Institute, the MFA, SALT and Scale Global. With the acquisition of both Deutsche Bank and Exane, BNP Paribas added top-ranked equity research and built out a premier, customizable electronic execution platform, providing clients with a holistic and fully integrated global equities experience. Her previous experience includes senior roles in Prime Brokerage Sales and Capital Introductions at Bank of America and Jefferies. Her hedge fund career began in research and due diligence at Wells Fargo and she holds an MBA from Pepperdine Graziadio Business School and a BA in Economics from Occidental College.

Jo Cunningham

Partner, Funds & Investment Management, Maples Group, Cayman Islands

Jo Cunningham was elected as a Partner of Maples' Cayman Islands Funds & Investment Management team in 2012. With the largest funds practice in the jurisdiction, the team's clients include seven of the world's top 10 hedge fund managers and nine of the top 10 private equity managers by AUM and she is responsible for servicing a number of those top-tier managers. She has been instructed on some of the largest and highest profile launches in the industry. Her background as a commercial barrister in London, combined with 15 years of investment funds expertise, gives her a unique perspective on the challenges and issues faced by investment fund clients and she frequently advises on complex fund reorganizations, spin outs and upper tier restructures. She is a regular speaker at industry conferences and has been ranked for consecutive years by IFLR 1000, Chambers and Partners, Legal 500 and Who's Who Legal. She is a Sustaining Angel of 100 Women in Finance having helped to establish the Cayman Islands Chapter initially and having served as the Chapter's co-chair for several years. She has a Masters and BA in Law from Cambridge University. She has featured in an earlier edition of this report.

Helen Doody

Managing Director & Head of Abbey Capital (US) LLC, Abbey Capital, New York

Helen Doody is Managing Director & Head of Abbey Capital (US) LLC, a subsidiary of alternative investment fund manager Abbey Capital. She heads up a team focused on client servicing and business development in the wealth management and institutional markets. She began leading US distribution for Abbey Capital in 2008. As part of her leadership role, she has been instrumental in establishing Abbey in the USA, where she has opened up distribution channels to some of the largest wealth management firms and allocators. Over the course of her career, she has spent time in New York, London and Dublin in both the hedge fund and institutional equities space. Prior to joining Abbey in 2008, she was a trader at Chilton Investment Management where she was responsible for the group's European equity trading. Before moving to the US, she was responsible for equity trading at Anglo Irish Bank. She began her career in 1999 with ABN Amro in Ireland trading Irish equities before moving to London in 2002 to be a market maker in European mid-cap stocks and a year later became a sales trader for hedge funds. She graduated from University College Dublin with a Bachelor of Commerce degree and Dublin City University with a Certificate in Investment Management. She is a board member of the US Advisory Board for the Michael Smurfit Business School at University College Dublin.

Heather Emling

Global Business Manager, Commodities, Citadel, Chicago

Heather Emling is a Business Manager for Citadel's Commodities business. She has been with the firm for nearly 20 years and has built a world-class team, several of whom have worked with her for nearly a decade. As Citadel's Commodities business has grown from 4 to over 20 investment teams during her tenure, she has led their onboarding and helped facilitate their subsequent growth. Her work covers all major commodity markets across a wide range of derivatives. She and her team spearhead new market access, leveraging their deep understanding of commodity markets and products. She is also responsible for driving operational excellence by implementing robust processes and controls across a complex asset class. She partners closely with engineering teams across the organization to drive commercial outcomes. In particular, she provides the operational leadership to Citadel's proprietary commodity execution platform. Her expertise has helped develop market-leading execution capabilities across hundreds of products. As a culture carrier, she is recognized for her high standards and for empowering her colleagues to deliver their best. Her extensive product experience means she has been a key player in positioning Citadel as one of the leading alternative asset managers globally in commodity markets. She earned a BS/BA in International Business from the University of Missouri.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Jillien Flores

Executive Vice President, Managing Director and Head of Global Government Affairs, Managed Funds Association, Washington DC

Jillien Flores leads MFA's global government affairs efforts to advance the ability of alternative asset managers – including hedge funds, crossover funds and private credit funds – to raise capital, invest and generate returns for their beneficiaries.

In that role, she manages the US, UK and EU government affairs teams based in Washington DC, London and Brussels, respectively. She and her team inform policymakers about the industry's contributions to the global economy, advance policies that enable the continued growth of the alternative asset management industry, and combat proposals that harm investors and markets. Since joining MFA in 2021, she has worked to foster a more favourable policy environment for alternative asset managers and helped advance US, EU and UK policy proposals that promote more open, resilient and competitive capital markets. Wins include preventing the change in treatment of carried interest in the US, securing AIFMD amendments that enable EU investors to access foreign expertise and repealing UK individual public short sale disclosure in favour of aggregated public disclosure. She also leads MFA's efforts to push back against policymaker scrutiny of nonbanks, including credit funds, and ensure these managers can continue to provide capital to businesses across the globe. She previously worked in government relations for Vanguard and earlier represented multiple financial services and capital markets clients at the government relations firm Porterfield, Fetting & Sears.

Eleanor Franchitti

Partner, Global Head of Business Development, Caxton Associates, London

Eleanor Franchitti is a Partner and the Global Head of Business Development at Caxton Associates, a $13 billion AUM macro hedge fund which she joined in 2020.

She oversees a team responsible for new business development, investor relations, client service and key relationships with pension funds, endowments, sovereign wealth funds, foundations and private banks. In addition, she sits on the firm's Partner and Culture Committees. Prior to Caxton she was at Eisler Capital and BlueCrest in similar roles. She started her career on the sell-side in high yield bond sales at Bank of America, followed by UBS and Tradeweb where she was Global Head of Credit Derivatives and responsible for establishing Swap Execution Facility (SEFs) trading protocol. She is actively involved in a variety of homeless and sports rehabilitation charities. She is the founder of the 'Remarkable Women Roundtable' where she promotes female leadership through grassroots networking and leading with content across a variety of industries. She graduated from Oxford University with an MA in Economics and Management. She has also been a guest lecturer at the University of Edinburgh on financial markets and the Global Financial Crisis.

Debra Franzese

Partner, Seward & Kissel, New York

On January 1, 2018, Debra Franzese became the youngest partner in the Investment Management Group in the firm's 100+ year history. Her clients range from emerging managers to managers with billions in AUM in the US, the UK, Europe and Asia, including some of the largest asset managers in the industry. She advises US and non-US managers on a wide range of legal issues, including fund formation (open- and closed-end funds, hybrid funds, funds of one, co-investment funds and separately managed accounts), ongoing regulatory compliance including preparation of policies and procedures, registration and exemptions for the SEC, CFTC and the NFA as well as SEC examinations. She has been recognized by Legal 500 and by IFLR 1000 as a "go-to figure for a host of the firm's high-profile funds". She regularly represents clients with respect to complex investor negotiations including anchor investments, seed investments and side letters, and has experience negotiating with some of the largest institutional investors, including sovereign wealth funds, with respect to investments in hedge and private equity funds. She assists emerging managers as they navigate novel legal and business issues, often functionally serving the role of general counsel on an outsourced basis. She was also integral in launching the firm's ESG task force and advises clients on developing and coordinating ESG and associated compliance policies, procedures and disclosure, in relation to evolving regulations. She has a JD from American University Washington College of Law.

50 LEADING WOMEN IN HEDGE FUNDS 2023

Alyssa Friedman

Head of Talent, Cubist Systematic Strategies and Point72 Global Macro, New York

Alyssa Friedman leads a team that is responsible for sourcing and hiring talent across experience levels and business lines globally, including portfolio managers, research analysts and software developers. Since 2020, she has helped double the number of Cubist investment teams and triple the number of Global Macro investment teams. She helped launch the Cubist Quant Academy, Cubist's rotational program for recent graduates. Started in 2021, the program offers hands-on training to quantitative researchers and developers to help them build a foundation for long-term success in systematic investing. Kejia Sun

Portfolio Manager, Marshall Wace North America, New York

Kejia Sun joined Marshall Wace in 2020 and leads the firm's global technology mandate, focusing on publicly listed semiconductor, hardware, software and internet stocks across cap sizes in the US, EU and Asia. She reports to Co-Founder Paul Marshall and oversees a team of New York-based global technology analysts, in addition to collaborating with the firm's Head of Sustainable Investing and Stewardship, Ilaria Calabresi, an honoree of an earlier edition of this report, on the firm's ESG initiatives and priorities. She also sits on Marshall Wace's Quantamental Committee, which informs how the firm works with quant analysts and alternative data. She has identified several long-duration growth tailwinds for tech, including the power of AI, particularly generative AI, over the next decade. She is also excited about tech's ongoing migration into the cloud and the ever-increasing value of semiconductor content across every facet of our lives, particularly given the rise of electric vehicles. Prior to joining Marshall Wace, she was a Portfolio Manager investing in technology companies at Citadel Global Equities. Before that, she worked at Bain Capital as a Private Equity Associate based in Boston and Hong Kong. She began her career advising semiconductor companies at McKinsey & Company and later started public markets investing at Capital Group. She holds an MBA from Harvard Business School and a Bachelor's degree in Electrical Engineering and Biological Sciences from Stanford University.

Schuyler Sweeney

Head of Broker and Corporate Relations, Surveyor Capital, Chicago

Schuyler Sweeney leads corporate and sell-side relations for Surveyor Capital, one of Citadel's four fundamental equities businesses. She was among the earliest team members at Surveyor, having joined Citadel soon after the business launched in 2010. Over her career, she has been highly influential in building strong and meaningful relationships across Wall Street and in establishing long-term partnerships with corporate management teams in key sectors where Surveyor invests. She has also been instrumental in introducing Surveyor to a number of new companies with whom they haven't previously had relationships. Goldman Sachs' Andy Kirwan describes Schuyler as a "key partner" who has "been instrumental in fostering and growing our firm-to-firm relationship over the past decade", and whose "impact and success has been built on trust, collaboration and transparency". She has also built a formidable reputation within the firm, as a respected source of expertise and an inspiring leader. She regularly advises stakeholders across the business – from portfolio managers to traders and analysts – giving strategic input based on her experience and deep sector knowledge. She has established a strong team, and together they continue to play a crucial role in driving the growth of the business. Outside of the office, she sits on the National Advisory Board of the Jefferson Scholars Foundation, which provides the premier merit scholarship at the University of Virginia, where she earned her BA in Economics.

Ellen van der Gulik

Senior Portfolio Manager and Strategist, Moore Capital, London

Ellen van der Gulik reports directly to Louis Bacon and has a central role in developing the key G10 macro views underpinning Moore Capital's principal risk taking. She helps translate these views into profitable trading strategies, particularly in the FX and fixed income space. She also works with President, Elaine Crocker, an honouree of an earlier edition of this report. Her strategies are derived from a top-down macro view and are thus often directional in nature. But her trades may branch out to relative value trades as well, and can include other asset classes, such as commodities, credit or equity indices, when opportunities arise. She has been a close follower of Japan for nearly two decades, a market which is back in the limelight as it emerges from its era of deflation. She devotes a large amount of time to geopolitics as well, on topics ranging from Brexit to the Ukraine War, and the geopolitical consequences of AI. She joined Moore Capital in 2002 and swiftly became Director of Research, before focusing directly on strategy and portfolio management. She previously worked at J.P. Morgan, initially as the Euro area economist, writing for the Global Data Watch publication, and later as fixed income strategist. Her career began as an economist at the Bank of England in 1990. She holds a Master's degree in Applied Econometrics from the University of Amsterdam and an MSc in Economics from the London School of Economics.
